TEMPLECOMBE MESSENGER

June 2026

June

As June unfolds, we step into the heart of the year—a month when creation bursts with life. Gardens bloom, days stretch long, and warm sunlight invites us outdoors. It's the perfect reminder that God's creatin follows rhythms of growth and renewal, the same rhythms He desires for our spiritual lives.

Named after Juno, the Roman goddess of marriage and family, June has long been connected with joy, growth, and new beginnings. Schools prepare for holidays, gardens burst into full bloom, and communities gather for festivals, concerts, and local events.

One of June's defining features is the summer solstice, usually occurring around June 20th or 21st in the Northern Hemisphere. It is the longest day of the year, offering extended daylight and warm evenings that encourage people to spend more time outside enjoying the world God has created for us. Parks, beaches, and town centres become lively gathering places filled with activity and colour. We see smiles on the faces of the people we pass.

June is also a month rich in celebrations and awareness events. Around the world, people recognise occasions such as Father's Day and World Environment Day.

For many, June represents opportunity. Students celebrate graduations, families begin summer vacations, and businesses often launch seasonable projects and campaigns. The month encourages reflection on achievements while inspiring plans for the months ahead. It is a time to discover opportunities to live out the joy of living in simple ways: a kind work, a helping hand, a moment of prayer with someone who needs it.

Nature is especially vibrant in June. Flowers such as roses, peonies, and lavender are at their peak, while farmers' markets fill with fresh produce including strawberries, cherries, and early summer vegetables. The combination of warm weather and natural beauty makes June a favourite month for all sorts of outdoor activities including weddings, picnics, and travel adventures.

As we move through these summer days, may our hearts stay open to the quiet ways God continues to grow us. Under this faithful care, every season—especially this one—becomes a time of blessing and renewal.

Meet the new Editor for

TEMPLECOMBE MESSENGER

Hello everybody, my name is Michael Bird, I live on Slades Hill. When my wife and I first came to live in the village, we were delighted to find the Templecombe Messenger among the newspapers in the Co-op. Although we already knew a little about the area, we quickly learned a great deal from it, so I'm very pleased to introduce myself as the new editor of the Messenger.

As I step into this role, I want to thank Thales Group for their continued generosity and acknowledge the exceptional work of Sarah Horn, whose commitment and vision have guided the publication with distinction. Her contributions have greatly strengthened and enriched the Messenger for the benefit of the community

Building on that legacy, I'm excited to lead the next chapter—exploring new ideas and with your help continuing to deliver something of value and interest to the community.

Transport For All

Seeking help !

The CATBus offers transport for anyone who needs it in Wincanton, Castle Cary, Bruton, Templecombe and surrounding villages, alongside the bus service we are pleased to be able to help patients get to medical appointments, locally and further afield with the help of our lovely volunteer 'social car' drivers.

Bookings are dealt with by the CATBus office and we ring or email our volunteers to see who is available to help.

Volunteers are under no obligation to accept any booking and are paid 50pence per mile for the trip. There is no additional cost for insurance and parking is free at hospitals where the 'Parking Eye' is employed.

All our volunteers have told us that this is not only a vital service for some members of the community but also extremely fulfilling and rewarding experience.

Bookings for this service have increased greatly and we need more volunteers to help out. Would you be able to spare some time once a week, or once a month?

Warmer weather doesn't lower the risk: Spring COVID jabs to protect vulnerable people in Somerset

As spring brings brighter weather, many people naturally feel more active and optimistic. But illnesses like COVID-19 haven't gone away, and for some, the risks remain very real.

42% of people in Somerset have already been vaccinated this Spring but the virus spreads easily all year round and can be very dangerous and even life threatening for vulnerable people such as those who are immunosuppressed and those who live in a care home for older adults.

That's why the NHS in Somerset is encouraging eligible people to book their spring booster when invited and reminding families and representatives with responsibility for care home residents to return consent forms where needed.

Not just for older people: What does having a weakened immune system mean?

If you live with a weakened immune system, your body can find it harder to fight off infections, increasing your risk of serious illness from viruses. Only people with specific conditions; including having had an organ transplant, undergoing some cancer treatments, or receiving long-term specialist therapies for conditions such as rheumatoid arthritis or inflammatory bowel disease; are recommended to have the COVID-19 vaccination. If you're unsure whether this applies to you, guidance is available at www.nhs.uk/covid-vaccine , or you can ask your pharmacist or GP surgery if you are unsure.

Support for housebound people

If you or someone you care for is eligible for the COVID-19 vaccination and is housebound, the Somerset Foundation Trust (SFT) Vaccination Outreach Team or your GP practice will get in touch between April and the 30 June to arrange a home visit appointment. It is sometimes normal to receive a national reminder from NHS England before your local team gets in contact, but please do not worry as this does not mean you have been missed. More information is available: https://bit.ly/housebound_vax

Giving consent for vaccinations in care homes

If you have a loved one living in an adult care home who is eligible, the care home should be in touch with you about upcoming visits from local NHS vaccination teams. Please return consent forms as soon as possible with your decision if you have power of attorney. Care home staff can help with any questions and more information is available: www.nhs.uk/covid vaccine.

Rob Weaver, GP and Deputy Chief Officer at NHS Somerset, said:

"Warmer weather sadly doesn't change the risk of COVID-19. The virus continues to circulate and for older people and those with weakened immune systems, the risk remains. Vaccination is one of the most effective ways to lower the risk of severe illness and reduce the chance of hospital admission. So please come forward when invited to avoid any delay in your protection."

If you are eligible, you will be invited by text, email, NHS App messages or by letter but you don't need to wait for an invite – just visit the NHS website, use the NHS App or call 119 now to book your appointment

A Midsummer's Night Dream

By William Shakespeare

To celebrate Midsummer's Day, 24th June 2026

Hermia and Lysander loved each other, but Hermia's father wanted Hermia to marry another man named Demetruis.

In Athens, where they lived, there was a terrible law. What it said was that any girl who refused to marry according to her father's wishes could be killed. Hermia's father was so angry with her for refusing to do as he wished, that he actually brought her before the Duke of Athens to ask if she could be killed, if she still refused to obey him.

The Duke gave Hermia four days to think about it, and, at the end of that time, if she still refused to marry Demetruis, she would have to die. Lysander of course was nearly mad with grief. The best idea he could come up with was to tell Hermia to run away to his aunt's house, who was far away, and where the cruel law did not apply. The, he thought, he could come and marry her. But before they could begin their plan, Hermia told her friend Helena what she was going to do.

Helena had loved Demetrius long before Hermia's father had began to force him to marry Hermia, and like all jealous people, Helena could not see that it was not poor Hermia's fault that Demetrius was going to marry her.

Helena knew that I she told Demetrius that Hermia was going to the wood outside Athens to escape the marriage, he would follow her, "and I can follow him, and at least I shall see him", she said to herself. So she went and told him, betraying her friend's secret.

Now the place where Lysander was planning to meet Hermia, and where the other two had decided to follow them, was a wood full of fairies, Oberon and Titania. Fairies are usually very wise folk, but every now and then they can be quite as foolish as mortal folk. Oberon and Titanta, who might have been as happy as the days were long had thrown away all their joy in a foolish quarrel. They never met without saying horrible things to each other, and yelled at each other so dreadfully that all their little fairy followers, for fear, would creep into acorn cup and hide.

And this night, the King and Queen of the fairies were fighting over a little boy that they both loved. Oberon wanted the boy to be one of his fairy knights, and Titania wanted him to stay with her. So instead of keeping a happy court and dancing all night in the moonlight, as fairies usually like to do, the King and his attendants wandered through one part of the wood, while the Queen with hers wandered through another, both of them trying to be the first to find the little boy, who had run away.

Oberon, wanting to be the one to find the little boy first, called his favourite fairy, Puck. Puck was the spirit of mischief. He used to slip into the dairies and take the cream away, and get into the church so that the butter would not come, and turn the beer sour, and lead people out of their way on dark nights and then laugh at them, and tumble people's stools from under them when they were going to sit down, und upset their hot tea over their chins when they were going to drink!

"Now," said Oberon to this little sprite, "fetch me the flower called Love-in-idleness. The juice of the purple flower laid on the eyes of those who sleep will make them, when they wake, to love the first thing they see. I will put some of the juice of that flower on my Titania's eyes, and when she wakes she will love the first thing she sees, be it a lion, bear, wolf, bull, meddling monkey or busy ape".

While Puck was gone, Demetruis passed through the glade followed by poor Helena, and still she told him how she loved him and reminded him of all his promises, and still he told her that he did not and could not love her, and that his promises were nothing.

As it was in his part of the forest, Oberson saw what was going on between Helena and Demetruis, and felt sorry for poor Helena. So when Puck returned with the flower, he told him to follow Demetruis and put some of the juice on his eyes, so that he might love Helena when he woke and looked on her, as much as she loved him.

So Puck set off, and wandering through the wood found not Demetruis, but Lysander, on whose eyes he put the juice; but when Lysander woke, he saw not his own Hermia, but Helena, who was walking through the wood looking for the cruel Demetruis; and directly he saw her he loved her and left his own lady, under the spell of the purple flower.

When Hermia woke she found Lysander gone, and wandered about the wood trying to find him. Puck went back and told Oberson what he had done, and Oberon soon found that he had made a mistake, and set out looking for Demetruis. When Oberon found him, he put some of the juice on his eyes. And the first thing Demetruis saw when he woke was also Helena! So now Demetrius and Lysander were both following her through the wood, and it was Hermia's turn to follow her lover as Helena had done before with Demetrius.

The of it was that Helena and Hermia began to argue, and when Hermia threatened to fight Helena, Helena asked for protection, because, as she said,

"Though she be but little, she is fierce".

So Demetruis and Lysander went off to fight each other instead.

Oberon was very sorry to see his kind scheme to help these lovers turn out so badly, so he said to Puck

"These two young men are going to fight, You must fill the night with dropping fog, and lead to astray so that one never finds the other. When they are tired out, they will fall asleep. Then drop this herb on Lysander's eyes. That will give him back his old sight and his old love. Then each man will have the lady who love him, and they will all think that this has been only a Midsummer Night's Dream, and all will be well with them.

So Puck went and did as he was told, and when the two had fallen asleep without meeting each other, Puck poured the juice on Lysander's eyes, and said:-

"When you wake up, you will take true delight
In the sight of your former love's eye.
Jack shall have Jill, and none will be ill"

Now it happened that when Titania woke the first thing she saw was a stupid clown, one of a party of players who had come out into the wood to rehearse their play. This clown had met with Puck who had put a donkey's head on his shoulders so that it looked as if it grew. As soon as Titania woke and saw this dreadful monster, she said "What angel is this? Are you as wise you are beautiful?".

"If I am wise enough to find my way out of this wood, that's enough for me," said the foolish clown whose name was Bottom.

"Do not desire to go out of the wood," said Titania, The spell of the love-juice was on her, and to her Bottom seemed the most beautiful and delightful creature on all the earth. " I love you," she said. "Come with me, and I will give you fairies to attend you". So she called four fairies, whose names were Peaseblossom, Cobweb, Moth, and Mustardseed.

The four fairies attended Bottom's every need, until he got tired and wanted to go to sleep. Then said Titania "And I will wind you in my arms".

And so when Oberon came along he found his beautiful Queen lavishing kisses and endearments on a clown with a donkey's head.

Before he released her from the enchantment, he persuaded her to give him the little boy . Then he took pity on her, and threw some juice of the disenchanting flower on her pretty eyes; and then in a moment she saw plainly the donkey-headed clown she had been loving, and knew how foolish she had been.

Thus all was made plain and straight again. Oberon and Titania loved each other more than ever. Demetruis thought of no-one but Helena, and Helena had never had any thought of anyone but Demetruis.

As for Hermia and Lysander, they were as loving a couple as you could meet in a day's march, even through a fairy wood.

Because Demetruis did not want to marry Hermia any longer, the Duke of Athens would not force Hermia to marry him. And so all four mortal lovers went back to Athens and were able to be married to be the people they wanted.

And the fairy King and Queen still live happily in that very wood to this very day.

Flowers of the Meadow part I

June really is the loveliest month for meadow flowers. Hopefully, many of you will have left an area of churchyard grass to grow long, either for No Mow May or else in preparation for some nature spotting as part of Churches Count on Nature.

One of the most showy flowers in a meadow is the Oxeye Daisy, also called Moon Daisy and Moonpenny; the large white petals drawing pollinators into the bright yellow centre. Look out for a variety of vetches, members of the pea family. You may find Tufted Vetch – look out for 6-spot burnet moths on this one. Bush Vetch and Common Vetch are likely too and a great many churchyards contain Bird's-foot-trefoil also known as Eggs and Bacon because of the mix of yellow and orange on the flowers. Richard Mabey, in his fantastic book Flora Britannica lists many names for Bird's-foot-trefoil including Hen and Chickens, Tom Thumb, Granny's Toenails, Cuckoo's Stocking and Dutchman's Clogs.

Lady's Bedstraw is often found in churchyards. It smells sweet when dried and would be added to hay stuffed in mattresses, particularly when preparing a bed for childbirth. Look out for the froth of yellow flowers (other bedstraws have white flowers) and the scent of honey. The Lady in the name is the Virgin Mary.

Perhaps your churchyard contains orchids, the most common one flowering in June is Common Spotted Orchid. The presence of orchids indicates an old grassland which has matured over time and developed a range of species within the soil. All orchids depend on a fungal partner, feeding the plant underground via the threadlike mycorrhizae.

Your churchyard meadow areas act as pitstops or cafes for insects and can buzz with life. Try and spend a little time enjoying them and seeing which pollinators are using them.
